

The background of the slide is a photograph taken from the perspective of someone inside an aircraft, looking out through a window. The view shows a vast, rugged mountain range covered in snow, stretching towards the horizon under a clear blue sky. A dark, diagonal structural element of the aircraft's frame or window frame cuts across the left side of the image. The text is overlaid on this scene.

An aerial photograph taken from an elevated position, likely an aircraft, looking down at the Bremerhaven harbor. The water is dark blue, and a thick layer of white stratus clouds covers much of the harbor and the surrounding city. In the foreground, the wing and part of the fuselage of the aircraft are visible. The city of Bremerhaven is visible in the background, with its buildings and infrastructure partially obscured by the clouds. The sky is a clear, pale blue.

An aerial photograph taken from a high altitude, looking down on a vast, snow-covered landscape. In the center, a city with numerous buildings and a dense network of roads is visible. To the left, a large body of water, likely a river or lake, flows through the scene. The surrounding areas are covered in snow, with some patches of bare ground and trees visible. The sky is a clear, pale blue. The overall scene is serene and expansive.
